FOREWORD

THE Whiton Family Association is the outgrowth of meetings held by a group of cousins who had previously organized the Stephen and Abigail (Byles) Whiton Association. These gatherings developed an increasing interest in family history and genealogy and in the summer of 1925 other branches of the Whiton family were invited to meet with them at Westford, the ancestral home of the family in Connecticut. After a picnic luncheon and an interesting program, the desirability of forming a larger association to include descendants of Thomas Whiton of Hingham, Massachusetts, the first of the name in America, was discussed. Opinion was unanimously favorable and a committee was chosen to consider the subject and report at a meeting to be held the following year.

The Organization Committee consisted of Lucius E. Whiton of New London, Conn., William H. Hall of West Hartford, Conn., Miss Emily J. Chism and Miss Abigail D. Amidon of Westford, Conn., Frank Warren Whiton of Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Julia B. (Chism) Gowdy of Hazardville, Conn. This committee later appointed a Genealogical Committee to gather data and prepare a mailing list of Whiton descendants. Members of the Genealogical Committee were Miss Emily J. Chism, Chairman; Miss Ellen J. Whiton of Waterbury, Conn., Miss Jennie E. Whiton of Hazardville, Conn., John M. Whiton of Plainfield, N. J. (since deceased), Dr. Walter H. Whiton of Neshanic Station, N. J., Glenville W. Whiton of Erie, Pa., Dr. Ernest A. Back of Washington, D. C., Frederick J. Whiton of New York City, Miss Flora E. Whiton of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. Mary F. (Whiton) Shipman of New London, Conn.

The report of the Organization Committee was presented at a meeting of Whiton kindred held July 3, 1926, at Hartford, Conn., in a series of resolutions which were adopted, thus forming the Whiton Family Association, whose objects were to be the promotion of acquaintance and sociability among members of the family and the collection and preservation of genealogical data. Frank Warren Whiton was elected the first President with three Vice-Presidents, William H. Hall, Glenville W. Whiton, and Mrs. Julia B. Gowdy. Mrs. Mary F. W. Shipman was elected Secretary and Lucius E. Whiton was chosen Treasurer. The Genealogical Committee was continued. An Executive Committee, consisting of the officers and three additional members was elected to prepare By-laws for the Association and present them at the next meeting for which they were directed to make arrangements. The three members elected to this committee were Gilbert W. Amidon of Stafford Springs, Conn., Mrs. Anna L. (Chism) Dawley of Norwich and Miss Alice R. Gillette of Hartford.

September 1, 1928, the Whiton Association met in New London, Conn. At this meeting the By-laws were adopted. These fixed the name of The Whiton Family Association, with eligibility to all descendants of James and Mary (Beal) Whiton of Hingham, Massachusetts; re-stated the two objects previously given; named officers, and two standing committees—Executive and Genealogical; decided upon one meeting each year for the Association with a biennial election of officers. No annual dues were authorized, funds to meet the necessary expenses to be raised by voluntary contributions at the meetings or in some manner to be determined by the Executive Committee.

The work done by the Genealogical Committee revealed much interest in the preparation of a Whiton Genealogy. It also developed that A. Sherrill Whiton of New York City was already actively engaged in the compilation of such a volume. It was decided to cooperate in this work and that the Association sponsor the publication of the book when ready. To that end a Publication Committee was appointed with power to take such action as might be necessary. Lucius E. Whiton, Chairman; A. Sherrill Whiton and George F. Leary of Springfield, Mass., were the members of this committee. For business purposes the "Whiton Family Association, Inc.," was incorporated under the laws of the State of Connecticut January 4, 1929.

The proof sheets have been read carefully for typographical errors but some mistakes may be found and the Secretary requests notification if such instances are discovered. See also a further statement on page 202.

Without registration and payment of dues it is difficult to number the membership of the Association. The Secretary's mailing list now (1932) carries about 300 names but in many cases one name represents an entire family.

Present (1932) officers of the Association are: President, Dr. Walter H. Whiton of Neshanic Station, N. J.; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. Anna L. Dawley of Norwich, Conn., George F. Leary of Springfield, Mass., and Gilbert W. Amidon of Stafford Springs, Conn.; Secretary, Mrs. Mary F. W. Shipman of New London; Treasurer, Lucius E. Whiton of New London. Other members of the Executive Committee are William H. Hall of West Hartford, Conn., Miss Emily J. Chism of Westford, Conn., and Frank W. Whiton of Hartford. The Genealogical Committee is Miss Emily J. Chism of Westford, A. Sherrill Whiton and Louis C. Whiton of New York City, Dr. Ernest A. Back of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Mary F. W. Shipman of New London.

WHITTON COURT, Shropshire, England
(Four miles east of Ludlow.) Built 1550 - 1632

THE WHITON FAMILY

The collection of data included in the History of the Whiton family of New England is the result of the combined efforts of several widely separated individuals, who for several years worked independently in tracing their own ancestry, and eventually merged their records.

Several town histories were published during the middle and late Eighteenth Century (notably those of Hanover and Hingham, Mass.), which contained vital and other statistics of local descendants of James Whiton of Hingham. It is also recorded that a professional genealogist, as early as 1863, offered early records of the Whiton family to one of its members, but nothing definite resulted from this, as the individual to whom they were offered at that time was occupied with government work in connection with the Civil War.

In addition to the town histories, above mentioned, which included a considerable number of Whitons, individual families have had their names and statistics recorded in a large number of local town, church and graveyard records, particularly in Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York. Many of these records have been collected and republished by the better known historical, biographical and genealogical societies, and the author is particularly indebted to the Mayflower Society for what it has accomplished in this respect.

Several members of the Whiton family, including the author, while in England, have made investigations into the origin of the family in that country. The results, however, to date have not been quite as complete or definite as they might have been; but even with the information collected thus far it would appear that it would be abundantly profitable for some one to pass a few weeks in Buckinghamshire, Oxfordshire and Nottinghamshire to better verify the information already at hand, and to search for new facts of interest, particularly in connection with the political, religious and social life of our English ancestors.

The investigation of the lives of the individual members of the Whiton family shows that as a whole the family represents a fairly accurate cross-section of the development and history and early inhabitants of the English Colonies in New England. Members of the family have taken an active part in the political, religious and military life of their localities. The family has been well represented in all the wars in which the Colonies and the States have taken part, from the earliest Indian skirmishes to the World War of 1917-18. Its members have served in all the important peace-time pursuits. Shipping and navigation, agriculture, manufacturing, engineering, railroading, the arts, the educational field, the church, the legal profession, civil and political life, and philanthrophy have all been well represented.

Certain branches of the family have been imbued with the pioneering spirit, and in the early part of the Eighteenth Century were inspired with the enthusiasm and courage of the frontiersman, and moved westward to the then sparsely settled and unknown lands of central and western New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and finally Oregon, Washington and California.

The activities of the early settlers in New England were related to fishing, trading, navigation and kindred industries. The condition of the soil, and the lack of navigable rivers, which were so plentiful in the South, limited the growth of the agricultural industries and economically prevented a development of the plantation system of land exploitation. In many ways this was a blessing in disguise. Although wealth was brought to the early settlers through fur exportation, and the benevolent cod-fish, the real growth of New England has been due to its manufacturing industries, forced upon it by the poverty of the soil. The industries of the seacoast were soon overcrowded, and by the third generation we find the younger sons and daughters courageously marching inland to the fields and villages of western Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Without tracing the steps of any individual, it may be noted that the descendants of James Whiton seem to have divided themselves into three main groups: 1st: those who remained near Hingham; 2d: those who went to Connecticut, and 3d: those who went to western Massachusetts, and then moved to central and western New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio—(the latter being then known as the Western Reserve), and to more distant points. Probably all the Whitons now residing in the western states are descendants of the group that went to Stockbridge and Lee, Massachusetts, from Ashford, Connecticut.

The greatest single group of Whitons are descendants of that strictly religious and enterprising man, Squire Elijah, of Ashford, Connecticut, who brought up fifteen children of his own, and, not satisfied with that, adopted five orphan boys, sons of his cousin, and brought them up to honorable manhood, and sent them on their way. Most of the western Whitons are descended from these five youths.

Frequently whole families, with their friends, moved with their household belongings, carried by teams of oxen, through roughly cut roads to western states, settling in small communities, establishing their churches and schools, and maintaining the traditions of their ancestors.

As was the custom in Colonial days, large families were the rule. The Whitons did their share in this respect, and although no one surpassed the record of Squire Elijah, a family of ten children was a common occurrence.

The population of the English Colonies in America increased from about 250,000 in 1649, to 17,000,000 inhabitants in 1840, of which about six per cent were foreign born, or had foreign born parents. From 1840 onward, the United States had successively the Irish, German, Jewish, Scandinavian and Mediterranean invasions. A total of 30,000,000 immigrants, or one-third of the population of the country in 1910, became resident in the United States; immigrants belonging principally to races whose religions, traditions and customs were either non-assimilable, or capable of slow assimilation. It would seem that the problem of the future is whether the families of the old traditions, the descendants of the early settlers of the United States, are going to remain in control of its destinies, or whether they are going to submit to the different standards of the newer element in our population. For these reasons, it is beneficial for us to study our ancestry, and from the early ideals strive to develop the character of our Nation according to the standards that have made it what it is.

It would seem that the Whiton family, small as it is, has done, not only its share, but more than its share in producing men and women of high calibre, of principle and of influence in their communities.

The great majority of the members of the Whiton family have had high moral standards with strong religious leanings. Most of them have been active members of some religious organization. Their connections have naturally been with the early independent churches of decentralized leadership, that were the rallying points of the Puritan thought.

The first Whitons who came to America undoubtedly made their momentous and courageous decision on account of the unbearable political and social conditions that existed in England during the reign of Charles the First. Although the emigration records state that they left England in conformity to the order and discipline of the Anglican Church, it is an accepted fact that a subterfuge was used in many cases to enable families to receive permission to emigrate to the New World; and as the emigration records differ from the Colonial records in many respects, it is reasonable to suppose that the former were in error as to the religious sentiments of the immigrants to Massachusetts. The Whitons were probably dissenters, as were most of the earlier voyagers to New England.

At any rate, the first Whitons to leave England must have been persons of ideals, who were vigorous both mentally and physically to be willing to run the risk of staking their future in a land so little known. They came of the yeomanry class,—the middle class of early English civil life,—half way between the nobility and the tillers of the soil. They were property owners in Oxfordshire and a family of liberal and independent thought, who asserted their rights and had the courage of their convictions.

The surname Whitton, or later Whiton, dates back to the earliest periods of recorded history in England. It is of Anglo-Saxon origin, and was derived from one of the several places that are called Whitton. It is of fairly common usage in England, and was undoubtedly adopted by several families as their surname as early as the Twelfth Century. The Anglo-Saxon form is Hwit-tun, meaning the "white farm" or "hamlet." Hwita was also an Anglo-Saxon word, meaning Light or Fair, and it is possible that the name means Hwita's farm or estate. It is interesting to note that the name is still pronounced as though the H was the first letter, even though this letter is now moved to the second place.

The name is found particularly in Buckinghamshire, Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, Staffordshire, Oxfordshire, Nottinghamshire, Shropshire and Norfolk. There is also a suburb to the west of London named Whitton. In Shropshire, about four miles east of Ludlow, is one of the most beautiful specimens of Elizabethan architecture in England, named Whitton Court. The existing building dates from the early Seventeenth Century; and records prove that this was preceded by an earlier building, dating from the Thirteenth Century, and was occupied by a family who derived their surname from their home.

There is another village named Whitton in Lincolnshire on the River Humber, opposite Hull, and not far from the towns of Bawtry and Scrooby, from which section the Mayflower emigrants left England for their short visit in Holland, before setting sail for the new land.

There are numerous early records of persons by the name of Whiton in the north of England. The town of Witun is mentioned in the Doomsday survey of Yorkshire. William de Whiton gave two "boucats" of land to Ravenswood Parish, and was known as the Knight of Yorkshire. He died in 1157. Sir Waterus de Wyton was Lord of the Townships of Seaton and Merton, Yorkshire. Agnes Whitton was prioress of St. Clements in the City of York. John Whytton, who died in 1387, was chaplain of Merton College, and a bronze figure of him was found in the grounds of the rectory of Whitton Tower, near the Round Tower. John de Whyton, who died in 1405, was sheriff of the City of York. Henry Whyten, who died in 1435, was principal of St. Mary Magdalen College, Oxford. Sir Nichols Whiten, M.P., was chosen Knight of Parliament from Devonshire. He was learned in the law and died in 1435.

The English home of the immediate ancestors of the original emigrant to this country has been fairly definitely traced. It is reasonable to suppose that he was at least from a family who lived in Oxfordshire, from which section of England came the great majority of the early settlers in this country.

The publication of this book has been made possible primarily through the organization in 1926 of the Whiton Family Association. It was due to this Association that the compiler has been able to collect the separate family records that have not heretofore been in print. The cost of publication was also guaranteed by members of the Association, and the author wishes to thank all those, who are too numerous to mention, who have contributed to the preparation of this work, and particularly Mr. Lucius E. Whiton of New London, Connecticut, Mr. Frank Warren Whiton of Hartford, Connecticut, Mr. George Francis Leary of Springfield, Massachusetts, Mr. Ernest Back of Washington, D. C., Miss Emily Chism of Westford, Connecticut, Mrs. John M. Whiton of Plainfield, N. J., Mr. Glenville W. Whiton of Erie, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Elva L. Whiton Parsons of Los Angeles, California, and also Mrs. Leander K. Shipman of New London, Connecticut, and Mr. Louis Claude Whiton of New York City, who have collaborated in the preparation of the book.

WHITON, or WHITING, James, the ancestor of the families here recorded, appears in H'm., Mass., in 1647, Dec. 30th of which year, he m. Mary Beals. In his will, his name is spelled Whiton, and by a large number of families in H'm., it is still spelled in this way, though by others, it is spelled Whiting. The coat of arms handed down in the family, a copy of which is given above, agrees with that of the Whitings, as described by Burke, in his General Armory.

THE WHITING FAMILY.

The Whitings in New England are descended from Rev. Samuel Whiting of Lynn, Mass. Cotton Mather says of him, he "drew his first breath at Boston, in Lincolnshire, November 20, A. D. 1597. His father, a person of good repute there, the eldest son among many brethren, an alderman, and sometime a mayor of the town, had three sons; the second of these was our Samuel, who had a learned education by his father bestowed upon him, first at Boston school, and then at the university of Cambridge.

By the kindness of Mr. Drake we give a cut of the arms; which are emblazoned; Party per saltire, azure and ermine, in the fesse point a leopard's face gold, in chief three besants. Crest, a lion's head erased.

THE WHITON ARMS

The Chairman of the Committee on Heraldry of The New England Historic Genealogical Society, in a prefatory note to its First Roll of Arms (1928—1 to 72), states that:

"The right to a Coat of Arms does not make a gentleman. But in the Seventeenth Century arms, as a rule, were borne by those who had risen into the gentry class. For example, every one of the fifty-nine Regicides who signed the King's death warrant also sealed it with his Seal of Arms. The Committee regards as of real importance the fact that a substantial number of our emigrant ancestors were of this same class, or sprang from gentle families. It throws much light on the character of the emigration as a whole, and helps to explain why men of the old stock have been able to contribute so much to civilization."

The introductory note to this First Roll states that:

"This Committee will now register all coats that come under one of the following heads:

"1—All coats that have been used time out of mind, regardless of whether or not they are registered at the College of Arms. This refers to coats that have been used by a family since the Middle Ages, and such coats are of course the blue-ribbon coats among those registered.

"2—Coats that have been granted or confirmed by the College of Arms.

"3—Coats that were brought over by an emigrant or first settler. The proof of such user establishes a prima facie case, but only a prima facie case; and the Committee reserves the right to disallow such a coat if hereafter proof be produced that the emigrant had no right to it. In registering such a coat, proof that the emigrant brought it over with him and used or claimed the coat is deemed sufficient. In each case what amounts to such proof is decided by the Committee."

In the Introductory to its Second Roll of Arms (July, 1932—73 to 162) the Committee states that:

"Occasionally somebody asks the Committee to register a coat, citing as authority for the right, books such as Crozier's 'General Armory,' Matthew's 'American Armory and Blue Book,' Bolton's 'American Armory,' and The Magazine of American Genealogy. Useful though they may be to show what Americans have used arms, these books contain so many coats that have been taken without right, that the Committee attaches no weight to them as authorities on the vital question of inheritance."

"The one hundred and sixty-two coats that have been registered are only a few of those that could properly be accepted on evidence already available. For many others the evidence is almost sufficient or is at least promising, and people are trying to bridge the gaps. Some undoubtedly will succeed. As time goes on, many an American will be surprised to find that he is entitled by inheritance to a good old Coat. The Committee hopes that the publication of its Rolls will arouse greater interest in the subject and lead to the registration of more and more Coats."

While some families claiming coats of arms in their genealogies may be disposed to question the right of the N. E. H. G. S. to assume authority in such matters, it is evident that its purpose is in the interest of accuracy, which all should concede to be important.

This (July, 1932) information led the Chairman of the Publication Committee to submit the picture of the James Whiton Arms (Fig. I, copied from Barry's History of Hanover) to the Committee on Heraldry, for comment, together with the information from Burke's General Armory about the Whitton (Nethercott co., Oxford) Arms and the statement by Mr. John M. Whiton about our English ancestors. The following quotations from the reply of the Committee Chairman are appended:

"The coat of arms in the photostat picture was borne to the best of my knowledge and belief by a family that spelled the name 'Whiting.' It is claimed by the descendants of the Rev. Samuel Whiting."

"Is it known that Thomas Whiton of Hingham was a son of William Whitton of Nethercott, Oxfordshire? Everything depends upon making a fairly good case to show that Thomas Whiton the emigrant did belong to the family in Nethercott which used the arms described by Burke. I trust that this will prove to be the case. I may remark that it is a good deal better Coat of Arms from an artistic point of view than that shown in your picture."

With the information about the Thomas Whiton ancestry obtained in England by Mr. John M. Whiton there would seem to be a presumption that the Whiton Family in America may claim, if they wish to do so, the Whitton (Nethercott) Arms as described by Burke, and shown in the drawing Fig. IV.

The delay in going to press has already been so great that it has not seemed advisable to wait an uncertain longer time required to obtain official confirming records from England and registration with the Committee on Heraldry of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. Such additional information, if and when obtained, will be furnished in the form of a supplement insert.

Comparing the drawings Figs. I, II, and III and the printed descriptions from Crozier and Matthews, it will be noticed that they are not identically similar. While all are azure and ermine with three roundels or bezants in chief, Figs. I and II have "Per Saltire" diagonal dividing lines, while the "Gyronny of Four" in Fig. III is shown by vertical and horizontal lines; i. e., the shield of Fig. III is "quartered." A leopard's face appears at the fess points of Figs. I and II; a leopard's head in profile at the fess point of Fig. III. The crests of Figs. I and III are lions rampant, while the crest of Fig. II is a lion's head erased.

FIRST GENERATION

1 THOMAS, son of William Whiton and Catherine Ardene (or -derne), was one of six children. As stated above, he probably emigrated from Oxfordshire, as evidenced by the vital records in the parish register at Hook Norton in that Shire, and a letter of attorney issued by his son James (2) relating to property at that place. In Hotten's "List of Emigrants," appears the following, which would seem to differ from the last statement; greater credence, though, being given to the former statement:

> "In the Elizabeth & Ann, Roger Cooper, Master, bound to New England, the underwritten names are to be transported p. certificate from ye minister of Benendon* in Kent of their conformitie to ye order and discipline of ye Church of England, & yt they are no Subsedy Men. 12th, May 1635."

Among the names are Jeremy Whitton, aged 8, and "bro.wever" (meaning not clear) Thomas Whitton, aged 36 and Awdry Whitton, aged 45.

The first official notice in this country is taken from the Vital Records of Plymouth, Massachusetts, which state that Thomas Whiton and Wynyfride Harding were married November 22, 1639. Awdry Whiton disappears from the records and probably died shortly after her arrival. The names in the emigration records were frequently misspelled, and the ages given, inaccurate. The Jeremy (Jamie) is undoubtedly James (2), who later settled in Hingham.

Thomas settled in Old Plymouth in 1637, where he was granted seven acres of land, and his name appears as a Proprietor in 1638. This would indicate that he was a man of character and influence, as land was only given to men of that type, and the proprietors had the power of confirming all grants or purchases from the Indians. On account of fear of Indian raids, these grants were small in size and contiguous. In 1644 he bought of Edward Edwards a house and two acres of land for nine pounds, two shillings and six pence. He died in 1664.*

It does not appear that there were any children by his marriage to Wynyfride; and in 1643, they adopted Sarah Hopkins, aged six years, "Until she should become twenty," agreeing "to be a father and mother to her, to instruct her in sewing, and to find meat, drink, apparel and lodging." If she married before she was twenty Thomas was to be paid for the remaining time as shall be judged just by two "indifferent" persons. It is conjectured that Sarah was a sister or niece of Oceanus Hopkins, who was born at sea on the Mayflower. In 1649 they adopted Jeremiah Smith, aged four years.

Wynyfride was evidently a woman of spirit and determination, for when in 1653 she was accused by one John Barnes of "telling lies," she promptly haled him before a magistrate and compelled a retraction. She died in 1660.*

SECOND GENERATION

2 JAMES, son of Thomas (1) was born in Hook Norton, near Banbury, Oxfordshire, England, where he was baptized in 1624, as appears by the parish register of that place.

After arriving in America, he lived with his father in Plymouth, Mass., until twenty-one years of age, when he moved with others to effect a settlement at Lancaster, Mass., where he signed the covenant entered into by the original settlers.* Two years later he moved to Hingham, Mass. The early name of Hingham was Bare Cove, so called because it was bare or open to the tide. Later, it was called Over The River, and subsequently Liberty Plain, and South Hingham. Here James settled and married Mary, daughter of John and Nazareth (Hobart) Beal in 1647, she being then 25 years of age.† On October 6, 1647, he gave a Letter of Attorney to Richard Betscomb of Hingham to collect a legacy of property in Hook Norton from the estate of Thomas Whiton.‡ He took the oath of freeman in 1660. In 1676 his home was burned by the Indians, led by Chief Philip of the Pokanoket Tribe, to meet the attacks of whom the men residents of Hingham were impressed into service.§ He served as Town Constable, in Hingham, an office at that time of dignity and importance.† He was a farmer and possessed of considerable real estate, for the records show him to have been one of the largest taxpayers in Hingham. He also owned land in Scituate, Abington, Hanover and other places and died at Hingham April 26, 1710. He was prominent in securing the erection of the Old Ship Church in Hingham, which is still standing, and to the building fund of which he donated fifty pounds, a large sum in those days. He died April 26, 1710, and his wife in 1696. Both are buried in Hingham.* Children:

JAMES, born April 10, 1649, died November 11, 1650.

10 JOSEPH, son of James (3), was born in Hingham, March 23, 1687, and married (1st) Martha, daughter of Samuel and Silence (Damon) Tower, December 10, 1713, who was born in Hingham July 20, 1693, and died in Rehoboth, Mass., September 19, 1719; and (2d) Rebecca, daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth Wilson, of Rehoboth.* He was a farmer and cooper, and served as town constable of Hingham. About 1718 he removed to Palmer's River, now Rehoboth, Mass., where he carried on his business as cooper for about ten years.† In 1726 he removed to Ashford, Conn., where he bought one hundred acres of land and where he died in 1777. He was buried in the cemetery in Westford,

TOMBSTONE OF JOSEPH WHITON (10)
Westford Hill, Conn.

Conn., in the establishment of which he was one of a committee of three.‡ In 1727 he, his wife and his son Elijah, were received as members of the Congregational Church in Ashford, from which they were dismissed in 1768. At that time there was trouble in the church. A new minister had been called. At his ordination he was asked: "Do you believe that when a child is born into the world he brings enough sin to damn him forever?" On his replying, "No," ordination was refused and many left the church. Among these were Joseph and his son Elijah, from whose grandson these facts were obtained. In 1769 Rebecca Wilson Whiton, his second wife, was dismissed from the same church to the new church in Westford, and their graves are in the Westford Cemetery. At that time the town of Ashford was about nine miles square and included Eastford and Westford. The History of Hingham describes him as a conscientious, unobtrusive and hard-working man. He must have thought very much of his second wife, for in his will he provided that if she married again she should in addition to her share of his estate have £100 additional.

She was born in Plymouth in 1723. Samuel Lucas was a son of Captain Benoni Lucas who was born in Plymouth October 3, 1659, and is listed as a Mayflower Descendant in Vol. IV of Mayf. Desc'ts, p. 112. His wife Elizabeth was the daughter of Lieutenant Jonathan Shaw, who was born in Plymouth in 1663, and died there January 18, 1728. Her grandfather came over in the Mayflower (see Vol. III Mayf. Desc'ts, p. 91, also Vol. III ibid, p. 204, also Vol. V ibid, p. 207). John, father of Jonathan Shaw, is said to have served in King Philip's War, in which he was killed. James Whiton moved to Chatham (now East Hampton), Conn., where, with his wife, he was buried, dying August 29, 1768. His wife was on May 8, 1769, appointed "guardian of Thomas and Joseph Witon, minor sons of Mr. James Witon." The inscription on his tombstone is: "A man faithful in all the relations of life." Their children, James, Joseph, Thomas, Ebenezer and John were brought up by their father's cousin, Squire Elijah Whiton (28) of Westford, together with the fifteen children of his own.* James is said to have been a seafaring man, trading with the West Indies.

In the official records of Middletown, he spelled his name Witon. His estate was administered upon by his widow, and divided among his children. His personal property was inventoried April 3, 1769, at £428 and from the assets named it would appear that he kept a general store.† He also owned considerable real estate, located on the east side of the Connecticut River, among which was the house in which he resided, with eight acres of land which he purchased February 28, 1756, for £750.†

When four years old he moved with his father to Palmer River, now Rehoboth, Mass., and later to Seekonk, and afterwards to Ashford, Conn. He accumulated a comfortable estate as a farmer, cooper and wheelwright. He was a man of exemplary piety; and states in one of his letters that he remembered each one of his children by name in prayer three times a day. At one time he was brought up before the church as having been intoxicated, but he defended himself with so much ability that he was acquitted. Upon the death of his cousin James (22) he assumed the care of his five orphan children, viz: James, Thomas, Joseph, Ebenezer and John. When the new church was built in 1768 he was assigned pew No. 1, and made Church Treasurer. On December 14, 1769, Ashford held a town meeting and appointed a committee, of which he was a member "to correspond with other committees in the County and elsewhere to encourage and help forward

He married (1st) Sarah Loring, who died in 1779, and (2d) Leah, daughter of Thomas and Bethia (Smith) Loring, of Hingham, who was born December 4, 1754;* (3d) Phebe Raymond, a widow. He is said to have served on the armed brig Hazard in 1776.* He was also a private in Captain Pyam Cushing's Company, Colonel Benjamin Lincoln's Regiment, assembled at Dorchester to guard the shore March 4, 1776, and also at Hull in June, 1776.† He moved to Norwich, Conn., and in 1794 advertised for workmen to assist him in building a bridge over the Piscataqua River at Portsmouth, N. H. The Norwich Packet of January 8, 1795, in a news article, described this as the "most elegant bridge in North America. It is viewed as one of the greatest pieces of mechanical genius done in America; one hundred piers from 20 to 25 feet in length, from 10 to 25 tons of timber in a pier." The same paper on March 17, 1796, tells us that "a model of an arch bridge, on an entirely new construction, has been completed by the celebrated architect, Captain Zenas Whiting, of this City, and was sent off on Saturday last for Newport to be embarked on a ship bound for Petersburg in Russia. Thus we see the great Tyrant of the north condescending to become dependent for mechanical invention on the genius of the New Hemisphere. The bridge which the Empress has it in contemplation to build is to be erected over the River Neva, which divides the City of

63 ISRAEL, son of Elijah (28), was born in Ashford, Conn., September 3, 1754, and married October 26, 1784, Dorothy, daughter of Samuel and Azubah (How) Crosby of Shrewsbury, Mass., who was born August 26, 1760, and died October 7, 1826. By his own efforts he acquired an education, studying first for the ministry but later turning to medicine. When news came of the battle of Lexington he, with others of his family,* joined the Connecticut troops and marched to Boston. He is said to have been an aide to General Putnam at the battle of Bunker Hill. He went with the army to New York and was in the engagements at Long Island, Harlem and White Plains; he was a surgeon in the Regiment of Colonel Knowlton. At the expiration of his term of service he located in Winchendon, Mass., and entered upon the practice of his profession. At the time of Shay's Rebellion in 1786/7 Israel Whiton was a loyal supporter of the government and opposed the movement. A party of insurgents attacked his home and threatened him with a bayonet; an old soldier, he successfully defended himself with a long-handled shovel. His wife siezed her sleeping child and fled to the woods; that child became the Rev. Dr. Whiton (122). A practicing physician for forty-two years he became eminent in his profession; at one time he maintained a medical school. He was a deacon in the church, a magistrate, represented his town in the Legislature and in 1808 he was chairman of a committee to petition the President of the United States to suspend the embargo as a whole or in part. In 1812 he was chairman of a committee to memorialize the President to the effect that the town beleived the war to be unnecessary. It is said that later, smallpox having broken out in the army, he volunteered to serve in a smallpox hospital near Mystic, Conn. In 1811 he bought 240 acres of land, including an outlet on Monomonauk Lake. He died May 19, 1819, and his epitaph says of him: "A member of the Christian Church, a friend of the Gospel and a lover of good men." On his tombstone in Winchendon appears the following:

"Reader, who e'er thou art attend,
And as these earth-born glories end,
I once had hopes, fears, joys and pains,
And now cold clay's all that remains.
I've paid the debt to Nature due,
Relentless death says so must you."

At the centennial celebration of the town of Winchendon, Mass., a hymn was sung, one verse of which read:

"Our father's God, to Thee we raise
Our hearts in songs of grateful praise.
For all the mercies Thou hast shown,
E'er while a hundred years have flown.
The wild woods waved o'er all the waste,
The streams flowed by in useless haste;
In swift pursuit the fierce wolf ran,
The stealthy savage marked his man."

A footnote adds that this refers to an incident in the life of Dr. Whiton.

ALPHA (171).
CHARLES (172).

101 JOSEPH LUCAS, son of Joseph (53), was born in Lee, Mass., July 14, 1799, and married Lavina Wright, who was born February 16, 1807, and died at Amherst, Ohio, April 8, 1874. That he was a man of the highest character is evidenced by the following extract from an obituary, published in a local newspaper at the time of his death:

> "It is with unfeigned diffidence we attempt to speak of this truly great and good man. Having chosen the plain and inconspicuous occupation of a farmer, an avocation to which the labors of his life were mainly devoted, his great abilities were shaded from public view by the retirement of his rural retreat, and were best known to his immediate neighbors and the friends who sought his counsel and opportunities to draw instruction from his ample stores of knowledge and wisdom. Had he selected for the exercise of the great natural powers with which his Creator endowed him the broad theatre of statesmanship, for which his abilities so eminently qualified him, his death would have been the signal of National mourning, and the stainless purity of his character, his sterling integrity, which no ambitious motives, no inducements of personal gain could swerve, would have served as a luminous example in this epoch of National calamity and political degeneracy to point the young and aspiring throughout the entire country to the true and only path that leads to a cloudless and unsullied renown. It is impossible that such a man as Judge Whiton, with those clear and deep convictions that spring from mature reflection and ample knowledge, should entertain other than the most fixed and earnest opinions upon all subjects in which he was interested or had made the subject of examination. Such was the character of his political convictions. His infant ear almost caught the dying echoes of the Revolution. He lived in the living presence of the Fathers of the Republic. The vigor of his manhood was wrought up to enthusiasm by the conflicts of those intellectual giants, Webster, Clay, Calhoun, Wright and Benton. He deeply and earnestly studied the great problems of free government that engaged the highest faculties of those powerful minds. His admiration for the free, unostentatious government of the earlier days of the Republic ripened into patriotic zeal for its perpetuation in its pristine purity. His close attention to history led him to apprehend that this admirable system might be overthrown by the gradual and stealthy approaches of the machinery and methods of oppression. To the last day of his life he carefully weighed the changing phases in our political phenomena, and was greatly exercised by hopes and fears in regard to the future of his Country. In his political associations he was a Democrat, and gave the last days of his active labors, and the almost hallowed aspirations of his fading life, to the re-establishment of the principles of that party. Though he received no special legal education, he was seven years an Associate Justice of the Court of Common Pleas. He represented his County in the Legislature, and for twelve years filled the office of Justice of the Peace. In every position, the man dignified the office, not the office the man. His knowledge of the nature and character of mankind was ample. So accurate was his analysis of cause and effect in the affairs of State, that his predictions of future results from present policy was almost prophetic. He was a constant student, and in daily communion with the best authors and greatest intellects of the past and present. His death is a public loss, and the vacancy he has left in the community will not soon be filled."

Children:

AGNES LAVINA, born in 1825 and died in Amherst, Ohio, in 1863. She married Henry Allen, by whom she had a daughter, who married Bryant O'Bannon, and resides at 1818 Park Drive, Charlotte, N. C.

CATHERINE, married M. W. Axtell, and died in San Francisco in 1918, leaving a daughter Agnes May, who married H. J. Moule; had children, M. Axtell, and Richard H., and resides at 610 Melville Avenue, Palo Alto, California.

JOSEPH LUCAS (173).

102 DANIEL GARFIELD, son of Joseph (53), was born in Lee, Mass., March 20, 1801, and married March 4, 1825, Anna Foote of Lee, who died in Milwaukee, Wis., in March, 1886. He was a storekeeper and, later in life, a district judge, and died in Janesville, Wis., in 1865.

Children:

HENRY KIRKE (174).

ELLEN, married (1st) William King, and (2d) Robert C. Spencer of Milwaukee, who died in 1886.

ANNA ELIZA, married George Chapman, who died in 1857.

103 EDWARD VERNON, son of Joseph (53), was born June 2, 1805, and married Amoret, daughter of Horatio and Maria (Hinkley) Dimock, who was born in Batavia, N. Y., in 1823, and died in Janesville, Wis., in 1902. The following is from an obituary notice in a local paper:

"The worst fears of the friends of Judge Whiton have been realized. He died at his residence in the City yesterday noon. This event, though not unexpected, will touch a vibrating chord in the public mind. For many years his name has been a familiar word in every household in the state, and by all classes his talents respected, while in his integrity the most implicit confidence has been reposed. His death makes a vacancy in the public service that will not easily be filled, and his immediate friends have suffered a loss that will never be supplied. Without a stain upon his reputation, he leaves the legacy of a name all will cherish, and the remembrance of private and public virtues affording alike an example and a solace in the bereavement all have sustained. He emigrated to Janesville in the year 1837. He soon occupied among the earlier settlers of the Territory the prominent position to which he was entitled by his ability and learning. He repeatedly occupied seats in both Houses of the Territorial Legislature, and was a leading and influential member of the convention which formed the present Constitution of the State. Immediately upon the admission of Wisconsin into the Union, and the adoption of a Judicial system, he was elected Judge of this (the 1st) Circuit, and ex-officio member of the Supreme Court, which position he held until the organization of a separate Supreme Court. From that time he has continued to be Chief Justice of the State. Before Mr. Whiton was elected to the Bench, he had sustained for several years at the Bar and in the Legislature a reputation second to none in Wisconsin. He was distinguished for the clearness of his mind, the calmness of his judgment, and above all for his inflexible integrity. Upon the Bench these qualities, combined with unquestioned impartiality, made him in the best sense of the term a popular Judge."

He died in 1859.

Child:

EDWARD VERNON (175).

104 EBENEZER, son of Ebenezer (54), was born March 13, 1788, and married August 20, 1810, Samantha, daughter of Joseph Whiton (53). JENNIE, died young.

CAROLINE WARNER, married in 1858 Samuel Smith Beman and had children: (a) Louise, married James Drumond Marston; (b) Katherine, married Darwin Dudley Olds; (c) Nathan S.

105 LUTHER, son of John (55), was born at Great Barrington, Mass., November 26, 1789, and married there May 13, 1813, Nancy, probably daughter of Frederick Cooper of Sheffield, who, upon the death of her parents, became the adopted daughter of General John Whiting of Great Barrington. She was born September 10, 1791, and died in Ithaca February 19, 1879.* Luther was a cabinet maker, and in association with his brother George was engaged for many years in the manufacture of fine furniture at Ithaca, N. Y., to which town he moved about the year 1827, having for about ten years previously lived in Binghamton, N. Y. He was a member of the Methodist Church, and died September 5, 1832, in Ithaca, where both he and his wife are interred. It is stated by those who remember his wife, that she was a woman of high mental attainments.

He settled in North Brookfield in 1810, and died February 14, 1850. On the fiftieth anniversary of his marriage the following poem was read:

Our Father God, before Thee now
Together we, Thy children bow,
And joyful willing song of praise
From lip and heart to Thee we raise.

We're gathered in the cherished spot,
Where Thou in wisdom cast the lot
Of parents, who before Thee stand
With children, these a filial band.

Back half a century; rolling years
This night; with love and hopes and fears
Their bridal vows, they made in youth,—
Since kept with holy faith and truth.

Through life's bright prime; through wiser days,
Together toiled their blended ways,
And now age smiles, they kiss the rod,
And patient wait their call to God.

Now sons and daughters come to bless
Their kind parental faithfulness,
And children's children, join and sing,—
While orphan hearts thanksgiving bring.

Departed ones, who shared this love
Raise holier songs in homes above,
Help us, Oh God, to join their song
And in Thy praise their strains prolong.*

122 JOHN MILTON, son of Israel (63), was born in Winchendon, Mass., August 1, 1785, fitted for college at Ipswich Academy, and entered Dartmouth College in 1801, leaving in 1804 for Yale College, from which he graduated in 1805. On October 18, 1808, he married Abigail, daughter of James and Elizabeth (Hubbard) Morris, of South Farms, Conn. He studied for the ministry and retained the charge at the Congregational Church at Antrim, N. H., for forty years. In his late life he removed to Bennington, N. H., dying there September 27, 1856. His widow died April 12, 1865. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by Princeton College. Of a calm judicial temperament, sound judgment, and a man of peace, he is said to have had a passion for righteousness and justice, for which he boldly fought. It was not by brilliant rhetoric or splendor of style, but by broad-minded views and loyalty to truth that he gained his leadership, not only about Antrim, but in all matters affecting the people of the entire state. His wife, Abigail Morris, traced her descent back to Thomas Morris, who emigrated by the ship Hester, and settled in Roxbury, Mass., in 1637.

143 ABIJAH, son of Abijah (80), was born March 7, 1787, and married Rachel Remington. He moved from Chesterfield, Mass., to Pierpont, Ashtabula County, Ohio, about 1812, and from there to Springfield Township, Erie County, Penn., in 1820, taking up a grant of a hundred and sixty-five acres of land on the Ridge Road. They traveled from Massachusetts in an ox cart to a country as yet rough and unsettled. To the back of the cart was tied their cow, to provide milk for their infant son, Madison, then a little over a year old. The story is told by his children that their father, hearing that a boat load of pigs had arrived at Connaut Harbor, drove with a neighbor fifteen miles from Pierpont to purchase them. They had great difficulty in driving the pigs back, and while awaiting the return of his neighbor with teams and wagons, he corralled the pigs and spent the entire night fighting off an attack of wolves. The property in Erie County remained in the family until 1905. While constructing a barn he was injured, and was lame during the latter years of his life. He died July 7, 1849.

His father and grandfathers were coopers; the choice of a wood-working trade was a natural selection. As a boy of fourteen he was "bound out" until twenty-one years of age to learn the carpenter's trade. He spent laborious hours in the pit helping to saw by hand the boards then used for builder's finish. Naturally he became interested in power. Before the age of twenty-one he purchased his time by extra work and became a millwright, helping to build large wooden water-wheels, flumes, etc., at the water-power developments at Willimantic, Conn., and at Colchester, Conn., where one of the early rubber industries was located. He worked for a time as a pattern-maker in a machine shop and foundry in Hartford, where he was a fellow employee with several young men who afterwards established important machine tool industries. While in Hartford he was an evening student in drawing and other classes in the old Wadsworth Atheneum. He started in business for himself in West Stafford in 1856, building a dam and developing a small water-power machine shop, and began making iron turbine water wheels. He soon gave his attention to the manufacture of centering machines and lathe chucks, upon which patents had been obtained. He was a skilled mechanic and inventor and his business of manufacturing special machines and chucks from his own patents was successful. Thirty years later the business was incorporated as The D. E. Whiton Machine Company, and removed to New London, Conn., where he also established his residence. An enthusiastic Republican from the first organization of the party, he held various town offices and was twice a member from Stafford in the Legislature. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which he generously supported and served in official capacity both at Stafford Springs and New London. He died at New London September 11, 1904.

JAMES MORRIS WHITON (206)

206 JAMES MORRIS, son of John Milton (122), was born in Antrim, N. H., November 8, 1809. In 1832 he married Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Ebenezer and Mary (Bass) Knowlton. Her mother, Margaret Bass, is a descendant of John Alden and Priscilla Mullin of Mayflower emigrants, through her father Moses Bass, grandfather Moses Bass, his father Joseph Bass, his father John Bass, who married Ruth Alden, daughter of John and Priscilla. He studied at the academy of his grandfather, James Morris, at Litchfield, Conn. In 1825, at the age of sixteen, he became a clerk in a store in Boston. In 1831 he organized the firm of Whiton and March in Boston, agents and dealers in cotton and woolen goods. In 1837 he was elected a member of the Boston City Council, and in 1839-40 a member of the Massachusetts Legislature. He was the author of a monograph on Post Office Reform, also one on Railways and their Management. In 1855 he received the degree of M.A. from Yale University. The life of James Morris, although he was not a minister, but a merchant, was inspired by the high sense of honor and independence which he thought a clergyman should possess. He was independent in politics, adopting as his guiding principle: "I stand alone, I would not give my free thought for a throne." In answer to a letter from his son James, in which his son refers to what seemed to him to be the voice of duty, calling him to be a minister, he wrote on the 12th of November, 1850, with other extended advice: "To be a minister, comfortably settled over a comfortable people, with a nice comfortable church, with a comfortable salary, with no ideas of what mankind are doing save what comes through some comfortable conservative religious newspaper, that is not only behind the age, but behind all ages, with no charities save those doled out through a few comfortable safe societies, that once a month take their collections by appointment, with no thought save to get through the world with ease, without rapping the knuckles of anybody who happens to be rich and 'respectable'; rather than see you such a minister, I would have you a hewer of wood or a drawer of water." He died, honored by all his friends and business associates, March 22, 1857.

SHIPS IN THE FOG

I hear them through dark streets along the town,
Reverberating mournfully, these slow
Black ships that sail up all the seas and down,
That come like shadows and like shadows go.
I hear them through the walls of every dream
Like wraiths that beckon, whom I cannot follow,
Voices of mist and fog and dark that seem
To echo and re-echo, hollow, hollow.
Some warm still night when stars and planets sleep,
When fickle suns to other worlds have gone,
I hope that I shall find, on a far deep,
A ship at anchor waiting, tall and lone,
To take me from a world of time well-lost,
To high adventurous days, wind-swept, wave-tossed.

PUBLISHERS' NOTE

The "make-up" of this book (each generation beginning on th right hand page) leaves this page available for the following state ments, which are in the nature of current advertising at the date o publication, rather than parts of a permanent record.

In the Foreword (Page 8) the care with which the proof sheet have been read with respect to typographical and similar errors, wa mentioned.

In many cases only very brief particulars have been obtained It is hoped that the publication of this genealogy may lead to in creased interest in the Whiton Family Association and that mor detailed information may be obtained from direct or collateral de scendants in many of these cases.

Such additional details may be sent to the Association Secretar at any time and will be included in the next following report to th Annual Association meeting.

Eventually such additional information, and current informatio from the members of living generations, may justify the publicatio of a pamphlet supplement, or, in the future, a revised edition.

CRADLE ROLL

Just at the close of the 1932 annual meeting, following a vot instructing the Secretary to send the congratulations of the Associa tion to the parents of children born during the year, the Presiden suggested the establishment of a Cradle Roll. This was enthusiasticall approved. It was an impromptu suggestion, not followed (at the lat hour) by a definite vote; but the Secretary especially requests notic of all such happy events and will gladly record every such "Doctor Degree" conferred thus early upon new members of the Whito Family.

COST OF PUBLICATION

The cost of preparing and publishing this Genealogy has ver considerably exceeded the amount at first estimated and the guarante fund then contributed. The sale of the entire edition of 400 copies a the original estimated price will probably not quite cover the cost It has been necessary for the Whiton Family Association, Inc., t borrow a considerable sum to finance the publication.

Hitherto the Association income has been only the small sur obtained by voluntary contributions from those attending the annua meetings. A special Finance Committee was appointed at the 193 meeting to consider this subject. After such consideration this Com mittee may recommend that an annual dues fee be substituted for con tributions at the annual meetings, a portion of this income to b applied in liquidation of any debt which may remain after the book have been distributed; or it may devise and recommend some othe plan.

Copies of this Genealogy may be obtained by writing to th Chairman of the Publication Committee, Lucius E. Whiton, Nev London, Conn.

INDEX—Collaterals

The collateral index appearing on the following pages contains the maiden names of Whiton wives, the married names of Whiton daughters, and the names of the descendants of Whiton daughters, so far as this information may be compiled from this book.

It is not complete as no information has been obtained about the children of many Whiton daughters, merely the fact of birth or marriage being given.

The Association Secretary will be glad at any time to receive such further information.

THE "LOST TRIBES"

It may have been noticed that there are many sons whose names have not been numbered and about whom no (or very few) particulars, other than the fact or date of birth, have been obtained. Several are recorded as having married and "moved west" or "south" or elsewhere.

These sons may have become fathers of many Whitons about whom no information has been received. The early use of various spellings (Whiten, Whiting, Whitten) has also very likely resulted in the failure to obtain particulars about some descendants who should properly be included in a complete Whiton genealogy. Thus there are probably some "Lost Tribes" which should be invited back to the ancestral fold.

To facilitate this return the following index of the names of these sons of earlier generations (to the tenth) has been compiled, with an assignment of numbers according to a system which uses, first, the father's number; next a serial number preceded by the letter "L" (indicating "lost"), followed by lower case letters a, b, c, etc., for grandsons; by aa, bb, cc, etc., for great grandsons, and by aa1, aa2, aa3 (or bb1, bb2, bb3), etc. for more than one son of any grandson.

Some blank pages are bound in, following this index, for the entry of new information about any of these numbers or the regular numbers appearing throughout the book.
